1. Qualitative Information on Quarterly Consolidated Financial Performance

(1) Explanation of Results of Operations

In the first nine months of the current fiscal year, the global economic recovery slowed due to shortages of semiconductors and other components as a result of the spread of the pandemic, inflation such as soaring resource and energy prices mainly as a result of the situation in Ukraine, as well as fluctuations of the financial and capital markets. The process of normalization of the previously restricted economic and social activities in the Japanese economy has now begun. Although consumer spending, capital expenditures and other parts of the economy are recovering, the outlook for the economy is uncertain due to inflation linked to rising prices of resources and energy and the yen's rapid depreciation and to restrictions on the supplies of many items.

The foamed plastics industry in Japan faced serious challenges as the recovery in demand came to a standstill and raw material prices increased.

JSP is working to further increase its corporate value by implementing reform strategies aimed at “expanding the value we provide for both economic value and social value to our customers and for addressing social issues” and “fortifying the management base,” which are the basic concepts underlying the Change for Growth medium-term business plan.

Sales were higher than one year earlier mainly because of revisions of prices for JSP products. The operating profit decreased from one year earlier because of delays in product price revisions to reflect the continuing increase in the cost of raw materials and other reasons.

Net sales in the first nine months were 99,080 million yen, up 16.4% from the same period of the previous fiscal year. Operating profit decreased 46.1% to 2,315 million yen, ordinary profit decreased 38.6% to 2,763 million yen and profit attributable to owners of parent decreased 35.9% to 2,109 million yen.

Results by business segment were as follows.

Extrusion Business

Sales of materials for household products, mainly STYRENPAPER, a foamed polystyrene sheet used in food packaging, increased due to higher sales volume of food trays and of MIRABOARD, a material used for advertising displays, and revisions of prices for these products.

Sales were higher than the previous fiscal year for industrial packaging products, including MIRAMAT, a foamed polyethylene sheet used for industrial packaging materials and flat panel displays, due to product price revisions. The sales volume of value-added products and general-purpose products decreased.

Sales of MIRAFOAM, an extruded board made of foamed polystyrene, and other construction and civil engineering materials increased because of product price revisions. The sales volume of materials for fabrication in the building construction and housing markets and of materials used for civil engineering applications were about the same as one year earlier.

Overall, the sales volume in this segment was about the same as one year earlier but monetary sales were higher because of product price revisions. Earnings decreased due to the impact of soaring raw material prices.

As a result, extrusion business sales increased 8.8% to 32,009 million yen and operating profit decreased 33.6% to 1,597 million yen.

Bead Business

ARPRO/P-BLOCK, an expanded polypropylene product manufactured and sold worldwide, is used in a diverse array of applications. Major applications are automotive parts such as bumper cores and seat cores, returnable containers for components of all types, cushioning and packaging materials, insulation and cushioning materials for housing facilities, and impact protection materials for athletic fields. Monetary sales and sales volumes of high-performance products, particularly ARPRO/P-BLOCK, increased despite the impact of the spread of the pandemic and the Ukraine crisis. Sales volumes increased in Japan, North America, South America, Singapore and South Korea, were unchanged in Europe and China, and decreased in Taiwan.

The sales volume of expandable polystyrene bead products, chiefly STYRODIA, decreased because of lower demand for these products in the fisheries sector. Monetary sales increased mainly due to product price revisions.

Sales of FOAMCORE, a hybrid molded product used as a material for prefabricated bathroom unit ceilings and marine floats, increased mainly due to a recovery in demand.

Total sales in this segment increased because of higher sales of high-performance products and product price revisions. Earnings decreased due to the higher cost of raw materials.

As a result, sales in bead business increased 22.0% to 62,089 million yen and operating profit decreased 46.9% to 1,326 million yen.

Other

Sales of general packaging materials increased in Japan as sales volume in the automotive parts transportation and other market sectors recovered. In China, strong demand for packaging materials for many types of components resulted in higher sales.

As a result, sales in the other segment increased 3.8% to 4,982 million yen and operating profit increased 0.9% to 152 million yen.

(3) Explanation of Consolidated Forecast and Other Forward-looking Statements

In Japan, shortages of semiconductors and other components and supply chain disruptions are likely to decline in the fiscal year's fourth quarter. However, the increasingly uncertain outlook because of the combination of a decline of the economy and rising prices is making consumers cautious about spending and having other negative effects.

The JSP Group will continue to work on product price revisions to maintain profitability as the cost in Japan of raw materials, utilities, logistics and many other items continues to climb.

We maintain the consolidated forecasts for the fiscal year ending March 31, 2023, which was disclosed in the Second Quarter Results for the Fiscal Year Ending March 31, 2023 dated October 31, 2022.
